THE CAPITAL CITY.

Judge McFie and Court Party His Returned to Santa Fe.

JUDGE PRINCE HAS A KICK

A member of The Citizen was in Santa Fe Thursday and yesterday on business, and in his rounds picked up the following interesting paragraphs:

W. D. Arright is the meat carver at the big department store of Cart wright, Davis & Co. He is all right, . hos. O'Donnell, who was in business in Cerrillos a few years ago, is now a hackman in the employ of Chas. COSSON.

The Palace and The Claire hotels are crowded these Lays, on account of SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, New York. the visitors attending the carnival company.

George S. Blunt and W. R. Price, both ex-Albuquerqueaus, report themselves getting along nicely. They are prospering. Clas. P. Lummis, the magazine editor and writer of Sounern California, was at Santa Fe the past few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Amado Chaves.

Neiss, who was justice of the peace of Cerrillos for many years, is now residing with his lamily in the Capital city. Mr. Neiss is the owner of a valuable coal mine near cerrillos James H. Nicholson is the efficient advertising agent of the Santa Fe Central. He is also the news editor of the New Mexican. in both posttions he is all O. A., and a rustler for business and news.

H. C. Yontz, who years ago resided in this city and then in Cerrillos, is now in business in Santa Fe, and his place of business is at No. 247 San Francisco street. He reports himself getting along nicely.

The territorial school superintendent, Col. J. rancisco Cnaves, is receiving the quarterly returns from the school superintendents of the various counties. Some of these reports present some interesting figures as to rent, tuel, etc.

Mayor Sparks is an enthusiastic Santa Fean, and he has good reasons to feel enthused. The Capital city is picking up in good shape, and improvements are noticeable in all parts of the city. The mayor really believes that Santa Fe will give Albuquerque a merry chase for first place in a very short time.

Dr. C. O. Harrison, a well known dentist, is now established in an office in the Capital city, and says he is doing a good business. Years ago he had an office here, but took a fancy to Cerrillos and moved to that town, and now he is in Santa Fe. Mrs. harrison is in this city, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Graham.

The card writing indulg d in be tween Judge B. S. Baker and District Attorney F. W. Clancy, of this judicial district, who seem to differ on certain court proprieties, has proved interesting reading to the attorneys and politicians of the Capital city, and they are viewing the battle with a great deal of pleasure. The Bon-Ton lodging house, with restaurant attached, had as guests gists. "The Hickory Farm" company Thursday night. They appeared at the Capital city opera house that night, and the crowd enjoyed a real "barnstorm- Visitors at This Popular Southern New One of the queerest reptiles in the ing" show. and passenger agent of the Santa Fe Silver City attorney, came with his Central railway, says business on the wife, but was obliged to return to his new line is picking up nicely, and the people residing along the road have almost abandoned the road wagons and now make their trips by rail. He thinks the Santa Fe Central will, sooner or later, loom up as a very valuable New Mexico railway.

Prince's Kick.

Hon. L. H. Prince had just come in from Espanola and was enthusiastic as to the apple crop in the upper Rio Grande valley, where the abundance of water in the summer and the bright sunny days of the autumn had united to produce very superior fruit. Governor Prince is president of the Territorial Horticultural society, and proud of the progress made in that line in the San Juan county and the Pecos valley, as well as in the older parts of New Mexico. He spoke highly of the recent exhibit at the fair in Albuquerque, and said that a singular thing about our city was that which in general it was very public spirited, yet in some respects in practice it was the reverse. For instance, in September it was full of plums from California when New Mexico is really the finest plum country in the United States, and during the fair time every store was crowded with apples from a remote point in Colorado, when irom almost every direction in our own territory the same fruit, of better flavor, could have beer had at a much lower price. Albuquerque people were calling on al. It Scares People PROTECT THE HOMESTEADS.

Plea for the Actual Settler in the West.

HOW THE LAWS ARE EVADED

For more than forty years the phrase "Homestead Law" has been pleasantly familiar to American ears. opened a way for millions of people to get a foothold upon the land. The idea was that as long as there was any portion of the public domain fit for agriculture, and not otherwise appropriated, any citizen, or even any alten who had declared his intention to become a citizen, might obtain 160 acres of it by filing his claim, and paying certain nominal fees, and settling upon it to make his Lome in good faith.

It was a beautiful act of paternalism Uncle sam, the rich and loving father, dividing his estate among all his children, natural and adopted. And the plan worked as beautifully as it sounded, so long as there were farms to be had in that part of the public domain which receives a good natural rainfall. Practically the last of such land has now passed away from the government. There is a vast empire vet left-an empire in which tens of millions will some time dwell-but evary acre of it must be irrigated before it will be fit for homes. When this is done, one acre will be equal in productive capacity to four acres dependng on rainfail.

To Build a Home. The central thought in the homestead law, as the name implies, is that a family should settle down to the enjoyment of an independence from the permanent tilling of the soil. When it is used for any other purpose it be comes a missomer and a disgrace. The law sought to make sure of the permanence of the settler's home by providing that he should live upon and cultivate his hopjestead entry for five years before getting final title. It a family could remain that length of time on a quarter section, it would certainly become established and attacaed to the soil. In the view of the lawmakers, neither less nor more could e asked as a cemonstration of good

But the commutation clause goes very far to nullify this wise provision of the law in regard to a five years' continuous residence and cultivation. Under this clause, title may pass to the settler at the end of fourteen months, on the payment of $1.25 per acre.

Chance to Evade the Law.

The commutation clause is entirely unnnecessary to the settler who intends to comply in perfect good faith with the letter and spirit of the homestead law. While it would be going too far to say that no one has ever availed himself of this means of shortening his residence upon the land for a worthy purpose, it is a fact that the method is chiefly useful to those who wish to evade the real intent of the law. There is a great struggle for valuable pasture lands in the west. The country continues to grow, and with it the demand for beef and mutten. The public pasture available for livestock does not grow, but becomes relatively less. Stockmen see the shadow of coming changes in land laws when they will no longer be able to use the range without restrictions and without price. Naturally enough, they desire to make themselves secure in the possession of as much good grazing land as possible. There is a way in which this may be done, and this is by means of the homestead law and convenient "dummies" to make entries under it.

Homestead Entries of Today Largely Fraude.

As the law requires actual residence it is desirable to have the required period as brief as possible. Residence upon it is usually nothing more than a "bluff." A claim shanty is erected and the owner does well if he sleeps there as often as one night in six months. Five years' residence would give title for a nominal price, but the claiment would rather commut after fourteen months and pay $1.25 per acre. Having obtained title, the entryman can immediately sell his and to any one he chooses-which is frequently the individual or corporation for whose benefit his filing was really made. In such cases the money has been advanced by the interested parties, while the man who has loaned his rights to citizenship receives a madest stipend for the accommodation. Considered as a homemaking p esition, the whole proceeding is a fa-The homestead law is all right, but the commutation cause is all wrong. The honest settler does not need it; and the country goes not need the other kind of settlers. The president has urgently demanded the repeal of this feature of the law, and backed by an enlightened and insistent public opinion, his advice cught speedily to carry with congress
